Drastic Cutting Of Rates Charged To English Firms.

U. S. TO RETALIATE

Provisions Of Jones Merchant Marine Act To Be Used.

Washington, Sept. 14.—Drastic cutting of rates by English shipping firms to offset the development of the American Merchant Marine was reported to the Shipping Board today.

The opening of the new American lines in competition with a parallel line under British registry has been the sign for drastic rate cutting by the British ship owners, according to the report which is in the hands of Admiral Benson, chairman of the Shipping Board. Officials of the Shipping Board let it be known that they will call into operation all the provisions of the Jones Merchant Marine Act in order to insure fair competition for ships of American registry. Admiral Benson has indicated that he does not care to use the provisions of the Jones Act providing for a preferential rate for goods in American bottoms but official stated that this clause would be used if it were found necessary to meet the methods of competition of foreign ship owners.

Reports made to Admiral Benson by Charles F. Deutch who has recently returned from an European trip as Admiralty counsel for the shipping board indicate that there is strong resentment among European shipowners over the efforts now being made to increase the maritime industry in the United States. The terms of the Jones Act which both Senator Jones and Admiral Benson declare are merely to insure fair competition are resented keenly in Great Britain and the Scandinavian countries. Deutch reported.

Reports received by the Shipping Board today indicate that the foreign opposition to the Jones Act is developing into an attempt to discriminate not only against American ships but against American business. The board is making an investigation of these reports.

That there is a widespread propaganda against the development of the American merchant marine was again charge today by Admiral Benson. Repeated charges that the shipping board as it now exists is without authority to function under the terms of the Jones Act were characterized by Admiral Benson as baseless attempts to injure the merchant marine.

HARDING GREETED WOUNDED SOLDIERS

Senator Harding during his visit to Fort Sheridan, Chicago, en route to St. Louis, inspected the military hospital there and greeted many of the wounded patients. Senator Harding was the guest of General Wood, commander of the Fort. The Senator, who was enthusiastically received is shown greeting wounded Doughboys.

BELIEVE END OF COAL STRIKE NEAR; BACK TO MINES ORDER EXPECTED BY LEADERS

Policy Meeting Adjourns To Meet Tuesday When Strike Matters Will Be Worked Out; See End Of Walkout.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 14.—United Mine Workers of America meeting in Hazelton to determine a policy are agreed that their contract must be honorably enforced and the mine workers in districts 1, 7 and 9 sent back to work, but they are undecided as to whether the "back-to-the-mines" order will be with provisos. District 1 officials are satisfied that the strike will be called off. District 7 leaders have taken a similar view. District 9 chieftains want the order to return to work issued with

ANTI-RED UPRISING BREAKS OUT WITHIN GATES OF PETROGRAD

Report States That Bolshevik Fleet Has Mutinied.

Paris, Sept. 14.—The French foreign office announced today that dispatches had been received from Copenhagen stating that an anti-Bolshevik uprising had broken out at Petrograd and that the Red fleet had mutinied.

The Copenhagen dispatch reported that the Red fleet had bombarded Kronstadt, one of the chief fortresses defending Petrograd on the seacoast.

According to the foreign office advices several Red commissioners had been murdered at Petrograd.

Officials of the foreign office pointed out that they had no direct confirmation of the reported uprising and mutiny of the fleet.

It was recalled in unofficial circles that a similar report of an anti-Bolshevik uprising in Russia was published by an obscure newspaper recently.

LEAGUE PACT DISCARDED BY GREAT POWERS

Europe Drifting Back To "Balance Of Power" System.

DIPLOMATS AT WORK

Schemes Outside Of World Pact Now Under Way.

Paris, Sept. 14.—Europe is rapidly drifting back to the old system of "balance of power" alliance which were held responsible for the World War.

When the assembly of the League of Nations meets for the first time at Geneva on November 15 to discuss world security, it will find that the diplomats of continental Europe are already at work on schemes of their own outside of the League organization. To date the following arrangements have been made:

A military and economic treaty between Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia, known as the "little alliance" in which the two powers bind themselves to join hands in case of aggression by Hungary.

A military alliance between France and Belgium whereby each country pledges itself to go to the aid of the other in case of an attack by Germany.

An economic agreement between the French and Hungarian governments the exact details of which are not fully known.

An economic accord between France and Italy, the foundation of which was laid at Aix Les Bains conference which ended yesterday.

In addition to the alliances, which are arousing interest in every capital in Europe, conversations are taking place with a view to extending the little alliance and also to extending the Franco-Hungarian agreement to include other central European powers now out in the cold.

Thus far the text of the agreements has not been handed to the secretary general of the League of Nations. (Sir Eric Drummond) as the signatory nations are bound to do under the League of Nations covenant. Very little is known of the contents of the Czechoslovak and Jugoslav alliance though the government at both Prague and Belgrade have given public assurance that it contains nothing apt to disturb the world's peace.

CLEAR UP MYSTERY OF GIRL RESCUED FROM MIAMI RIVER

Identity Of Young Woman Is Finally Established.

Dayton, O., Sept. 14.—"Now you admit that I win," said Dayton's mystery girl, who after being rescued from the Miami river by police last Friday, refused to divulge her identity, in speaking to reporters today.

The scribes admitted their defeat in their efforts to identify the girl.

"Then Policewoman Sellers may tell you the story," consented the girl.

So she is Elva Commans, 18, of Columbus. The policewoman who had her in charge since the dip in the river has known ever since the girl was taken from the hospital but was "honored" bound by the girl not to tell until her folks were communicated with. It is said the girl had a heated argument with a sister two weeks ago and left home. Coming to Dayton she registered at a local hotel and brooding over the family affair went to the river and jumped in. She will stay here if clerical work is found for her and says her "water soaking cured her."

REPUBLICAN LANDSLIDE SWEEPS STATE OF MAINE; DISAPPROVAL OF LEAGUE VOICED BY WOMEN

Vanguard Of Women Who Will Vote Nationally In November Comes Out Strongly Against Wilson Policies; Republicans Win Practically All Offices; League Of Nations Chief Issue.

Augusta, Me., Sept. 14.—Women of Maine, the vanguard of those who will vote in the presidential election, have placed their stamp of disapproval on the League of Nations.

Turning out in enormous numbers, the new voters in this "barometer" state joined with the men and swamped candidates in the state election who espoused President Wilson's foreign policies. The result was a Republican landslide.

Frederick H. Parkhurst of Bangor, Republican candidate for governor, who defeated Bertrand G. McIntyre, Democrat by more than 66,000 declared today that "the voters of Maine represent the autocratic and un-American administration that the Democrats have given us during the last seven years; it is the endorsement of Harding and Coolidge who will be elected in November."

Republicans won practically every office. The governorship, the rest of the state ticket, all four seats in congress, the entire state and senate and all but ten seats in the state house of representatives fell to Republicans. The League of Nations was

HARDING PROMISES SUPPORT TO CALIFORNIA ON JAPANESE ISSUE

Senator In Addressing Group Of Delegates From Coast State Declares His Policy With Regard To Japanese Immigration.

Marion, O., Sept. 14.—Recognizing that there exists between the United States and Japan a friction over the immigration question which might lead to grave consequences, Senator Warren G. Harding promised a group of Californians today that the federal government would stand behind the Pacific coast states in every measure consistent with national honor to help them solve their problem.

"No one," said Senator Harding, "can tranquilly contemplate the future of this republic without an anxiety for abundant provision for admission to our shores of only immigrant who can be assimilated and thoroughly imbued with the American spirit."

Senator Harding addressed the Californians about thirty in number, from his front porch. They came across the continent to lay before the Republican candidate some of the Pacific coast's particular problems. The spokesman was Governor William D. Stephens, and included in the delegation were representatives of every big industry on the coast.

"Our people," said Governor Stephens, addressing Senator Harding, "are practically unanimous in opposing the further immigration into our republic of unassimilable aliens."

"Standing at the gateway of the Orient, we are first to feel the effects of this immigration, and we believe it our duty to warn the nation of the dangers which beset it as well as our state from this source."

In reply Senator Harding said he realized the position of the coast states:

"These are abundant evidence of the dangers which lurk in racial differences without raising any question which inferiority or inequality may create, as I believe they have created in our Pacific coast states, without blame on either side, a friction that must be recognized."

"The nation owes it to the Pacific coast states to stand by them to relieve them of their difficulties."

Senator Harding also dealt specifically with a request by the Californians for protection of their home-grown products. If it is found that a higher protection is needed than the tariff promised, it will be given.

The senator vigorously defended the "one-man" oligarchy which Governor Cox has so hotly attacked on his western trip. Those who are now attacking the senate, Harding said, are those who have set up a "one-man" autocratic government which they now desire to perpetuate in "full accord."

It is a "strange and deplorable thing," he said that the Democratic party has fallen into the hands of those who "have robbed us of true democracy."

GOVERNOR COX TO INVADE STATE OF IDAHO ON TOUR

Home State Of Borah Is Visited By Ohio's Governor.

Enroute With Governor Cox, Weiser, Idaho, Sept. 14.—Governor James M. Cox, democratic presidential nominee, started in today breaking his doctor's rules warning against outdoor speaking because of the throat infection which had been acute during the last three days. He yielded to the demands of crowds which gathered around the rear platform and made brief speeches at Baker, Huntington, and Ontario, just before he crossed the state line into Idaho enroute to Boise where he will deliver a set speech tonight.

Governor Cox's invasion of Idaho took on a special significance because it is the home state of Senator William E. Borah, leader of the irreconcilable group in the Senate fight against the ratification of the treaty.

The effect that Governor Cox will have in fighting within, as national politicians put it, the very shadow of Senator Borah's front porch is being keenly watched in this section of the country. Gov. Cox has great personal admiration for Senator Borah and is making no secret of it. He believes that Borah is absolutely sincere in his opposition to the treaty and not playing politics as he accuses other Republicans of doing with regard to it.

INSTANTLY KILLED.

Marietta, O., Sept. 14.—Ruth Gattrell, 18, was instantly killed last night when a truck struck a buggy in which she was riding and tore off a wheel. Her head struck the pavement when she was thrown out and her skull was crushed.

ALL FACTORIES SEIZED BY ITALIAN WORKERS

Paris, Sept. 14.—Despite the resolution of the Italian confederation of labor that soviet control of industries should not be spread beyond the iron steel plants all the factories in Lombardy were seized by the workers, according to a dispatch from Milan today.

A general strike has been declared in the Come district. All industrial establishments in that region are idle.

HELD ON CHARGE TRIES TO ESCAPE

Washington, Sept. 14.—Roy Kuehling, who is held here by the police pending a grand jury investigation of the drowning of his wife, Gertrude V. Kuehling, wealthy Detroit woman was found early today in the detention room at police headquarters removing the panels from the door, the police announced. Police charge that Kuehling was attempting an escape. Kuehling is expected to go before the grand jury today.

SEVENTY NAMES ARE ORDERED DRAWN FOR OHIO MURDER TRIAL

One Three Tentative Jurors Remain After Examination.

Columbus, O., Sept. 14.—A special venire of 70 names was ordered drawn for today in connection with the trial of Herbert Fletcher, accused jointly with Fred Roell, of murdering Mrs. Betty McCormick, while trying to rob her and her male escort who were auto riding south of Columbus on the night of July 25.

Only three tentative jurors remained in the box after examination of 21 of a special venire of 36 talesmen.

Most of the prospective jurors were excused either because they had formed opinions in the case or because they indicated they might hesitate to let the death penalty be imposed if they were in doubt as to which of the two defendants fired the fatal shot.

Spirited Meeting Endorses City Manager and Commissioners

Four hundred citizens, men and women, assembled in the opera house Monday night, expressed their approval and support of the city administration, and unanimously endorsed the city manager and all five city commissioners, at the conclusion of an open meeting, called for the purpose of considering charges contained in petitions asking for the recall of City Commissioners Frazer, Charters, and Whalen.

The meeting took on the nature of an old time New England town gathering, and was disappointing only in the fact that representatives and backers of the movement to oust the three commissioners failed to appear, and to present their side. Speakers called upon impromptu by Dr. B. R. McClellan, chairman of the investigating committee of the citizens' committee, challenged the leaders of the opposition to speak or "forever hold their peace" and the challenge went unanswered.

The charges in the petition were considered fairly, City Manager Kenyon Riddle presenting the figures showing the actual cost of city operating expenses, city paving projects and the city water works proposition, and explaining each step taken by the commission in the different projects. His statements, presented clearly, went unchallenged, while petitions citing charges of waste and extravagance were being circulated on the streets.

John W. Prugh, called on by Dr. McClellan, paid tribute to the demonstration of the figures given by Mr. Riddle. "This meeting was called to see what is the matter with the three commissioners named in the petition," he said. "I have a grievance myself. Many of us have grievances. But it does not reach the point of getting up petitions to oust three of the most honorable men in Xenia. The people who are instigators of this movement should get up and tell us why, or forever hold their peace, and withdraw the petitions. This is a time when we are not living under boss rule. You can not hold back by crying that they are spending too many dollars unless it is proved those dollars are mis-spent dollars."

Mr. Prugh continued by saying that "the people of Xenia should feel proud of its good streets, good sewers and good water," citing that "property has manifolded in value because of these improvements. It is unfortunate that we have to pay the price we do, but we are doing it on a 50 cent dollar," he said. "Charters, Frazer and Whalen, are men with reputations for honesty and integrity. I think these men have been attacked for political purposes to drive us back to that rotten form of government, the federal form, and put the city under control of the machine. There is only one way to run your business and my business, and I hope to see the national and state government adopt the manager plan of government."

Dr. A. M. Patterson, when called upon, said that he had been favorably impressed with the report of the city, as gotten out by the commission. He remarked that the report showed that the cost of operating the city during the first two years of the commission manager form of government, had been no more than the last two years of the federal form of government, despite the rise in cost of everything.

City Treasurer J. E. Sutton, verified the figures given by Mr. Riddle, and Mr. Riddle himself said he would be willing to spend any evening with any citizen or any body of citizens that wanted to investigate any operations of the city.

F. L. Smith, said that the charge in the petitions, that the majority had ruled the commission, seemed to him ridiculous, as it is usual for the majority to rule the minority. He said: "I have gone through the records of the minutes of the commission, and found that all five commissioners voted for the street paving propositions unanimously, and that on the water works question, Charters, Frazer and DeHaven voted for the purchase of the plant, while Whalen and Fisher had voted against it."

Mr. Smith added "the only time there was a division in the commission such as claimed by the petitioners, in asking for the recall of Charters, Frazer and Whalen, was on the awning question, when the three named commissioners, voted for the ordinance, while DeHaven and Fisher voted against it."

Other speakers at the meeting were Miss Anna McCracken, Mrs. Nelle Schuster, Frank McCurran and M. J. Hartley. Closing the meeting, P. H. Flynn presented a motion that those present stand in endorsement of the administration, which Mr. Prugh amended by making it an endorsement of the city manager and of Commissioners Charters, Frazer and Whalen, DeHaven and Fisher "for their good teamwork," he said. The crowd was unanimous in voting for this endorsement.

The meeting was arranged with no ulterior motive other than getting at the facts of the case the committee says. Both sides were invited to take part in the controversy, the aim of the meeting being to bring before the people, either that the charges, as cited in the ouster petitions, were true, or to discredit them and prove their falsity.

Representatives of the side presenting the petitions were not present however, and offered no defense of their charges before the 400 people.

Dr. Beckman, who has been most energetic in denouncing the evil effect of Paris night life among American sightseers.

"IRON HORSE" NOW BIG FACTOR IN INDUSTRY OF COUNTRY POPULAR IN GREENE COUNTY

Unlike the automobile in that its growth has been much faster, but like that vehicle in the revolution it has fostered in its particular sphere, the tractor is growing in popularity in Greene County.

People who gazed in awe at the first "horseless carriage" and later admitted it was a novelty but who could see no real future in its development, are the same who gazed upon the tractor as another foolhardy invention of modern times and predicted for it a great use on the ranches of the west but absolutely no sphere in the smaller cut-up farms of the east and middle west.

Yet those who came to scoff have remained to praise for in the language of Greene County's practical farmer, the tractor has found its field here as it did on the ranches and is being adapted with just as much enthusiasm here on the comparatively small farms as it is on the acres of tilled ground in the great west.

Greene County farmers will tell you that there are not yet many of the cast-iron substitutes for the horse doing farm work in this fertile county, but if they are of the progressive, energetic type of farmer, of which Greene County is made up, they will add in the same breath that those now being used are not only successful but are spelling the advent of theirs in their wake in the near future.

Farmers, even with the chopped-up fields are finding the iron monsters useful. They know if they do not own one of the machines that their neighbor starts his work later than they do and gets through sooner with less worry and work, which is demonstration enough for the progressive tiller of the soil.

They know also that the tractor costs money for upkeep only when it is giving something in return. In other words the expenses of the tractor are nil when the mechanical beast is not working, which is considerably more than can be said of that faithful domestic animal, the horse, who takes his three square meals daily, even though he has been standing idle for the past three weeks.

Two farmers discussing the situation in a local barber shop sowed the seed for this more or less enlightening epistle on the evolution of farm work. "Many people said they wouldn't be practical except on the big farms out West," said one and his companion nodded assent.

"Now, there are more tractors in the east than there are in this section of the country," replied the first. With gasoline men-of-all-work being manufactured in all shapes, sizes and degrees of power and made so that they can be operated infinitely more easier than a team of horses

Is It Yours

THIS IS THE BIRTHDAY OF CORNELIUS AGRIPPA September 14th, 1486.

Henry Cornelius Agrippa, writer, soldier statesman and magician was born in Cologne in 1486. He was extraordinarily bright as a boy and at a time when anyone who could read or write even his own language was considered marvelous, Agrippa spoke and wrote eight languages. Like all young men, he was compelled to serve in the army and was under Maximilian the First who, delighted with the boy's learning, made him his secretary. Maximilian sent him on various diplomatic missions. During his travels Agrippa managed to study medicine and science. He created a storm of excitement in Europe by defending witchcraft, and he wrote a book in defense of magic, since the "practice of magic brought man to an understanding of the miracles wrought by God."

HARDING CLAIMS THE LEAGUE WOULD HAVE GOT US INTO WAR IN POLAND'S DEFENSE.

To a delegation of Indiana and Minnesota Republicans, Senator Harding analyzed the league of nations and pronounced it an "irredeemable failure," as demonstrated largely in the case of the Russian invasion of Poland. If we had been a member of the league, he asserted, "we would have been called upon to fulfill the obligations which we had assumed under Article X of the league covenant to preserve the territorial integrity of Poland." The league council, he said, reasoned that the United States could have furnished the munitions and the men to stop the Russians far more easily than exhausted Europe. The claim that our membership in the league would have saved the life of the covenant, when the 28 nations that are now members cannot make it function, pays to America the tribute of exceptional influence, he said. "But what can this reliance upon America signify if not that it is to the United States alone that the other 28 nations look for the bone and sinew, the money, munitions and men to sustain the entire organization, not as an agency of peace but as an armed force?" Referring to the oft-repeated statement of the Democrats that the United States could not be called to war under the terms of the league since congress only can declare war, and that congress might reject the appeal of the executive, Senator Harding asked: "But would congress do that? Could congress do that without staining indelibly the honor of the nation?" On the occasion when a committee of senators called on the president to get his views on the league obligations, Senator Harding put this very question to him. He asked Mr. Wilson whether the nation, if once committed to the league plan, would not be virtually forced to uphold it to the fullest extent. To this the president responded: "Why, Senator, it is surprising that that question should be asked. If we undertake an obligation we are bound in the most solemn way to carry it out." He explained that the obligation would be a moral one, and added that "a moral obligation is, of course, superior to a legal obligation and of greater binding force." Senator Williams of Miss., Dem., questioned the president further on the subject. If any part of the world was attacked and "this attack fell within the terms of the treaty, then we would be untrue if we did not keep our word," said the senator. And the president answered: "Certainly." This is from the verbatim report taken by the stenographers at the time. It thus appears that President Wilson believes the league action would bind the United States and that congress would be under obligation to give its assent.

What Senator Harding favors was described by him as follows: "A world court of justice supplemented by a world association for conference; a judicial tribunal to be governed by fixed and definite principles of law administered without passion or prejudice; a society of free nations, or a league of free nations, animated by consideration of right and justice instead of might and self-interest, and not merely proclaimed an agency in pursuit of peace, but so organized and so participated in as to make the actual attainment of peace a reasonable possibility. Such an association I favor with all my heart." This proposal, the senator asserted, was no new thing. "The Hague tribunal, unlike the league of Versailles, is still functioning." In that body, he said, we have the necessary framework.

LAFAYETTE'S BIRTHDAY—SEPTEMBER 6th.

It is a great pity that the public schools and the colleges of America were not all in session for the new anniversary, the birth of Lafayette, September 6th, which has been celebrated ever since the world war with a new and poignant meaning. For whatever Lafayette may be to France and to the world at large, to America he is unquestionably youth personified, inspired and working for a high ideal. We are too apt to forget that the over-dignified title of "Major General" granted him by a grateful Congress in July, 1777, rested on the graceful shoulders of a lithe and buoyant youth scarcely out of his teens.

It is the memory of his American career, the most important thing in his life, that Americans will cherish, since it fits in so well with our present-day memories when we are honoring our own youth who went overseas to France, to repay in part in life or death the debt of gratitude we owed to Lafayette.

This is the kind of thing that gives a new touch, therefore, to this anniversary. The fact that Lafayette lived long after the eventful four years when he served the Revolutionary cause and fought with the ragged Continentals, plays, of course, a great part in his general estimation. But the Lafayette of the several French revolutions and shifts of government and dynasties in Europe is not the Lafayette that Washington loved and his general's chummed with. Nor is the old Lafayette of his famous official visit to America in 1825, when he was sixty-eight years old, the real Lafayette of America. No; fortunately for our schools and our colleges and for the veterans of all our wars, the Lafayette whose birthday we celebrate, is no aged and worn-out septuagenarian, but the one whose glory was his nonage, his enthusiasms and his convictions as to the rightness of the great cause of a people who, in the New World, had determined to be free and to set up a government along new lines for the admiration and the imitation of mankind.

FEET OF CLAY.

At times some saintly writer has made a hit with me, some sane and forceful fighter against iniquity. Without too much of preaching, great truths his books expound, the truths that should be reaching this weary world around. And every time I read him, I think, "His life's a prize! The soul sick people need him, to bring their sunshine home!" And I assume he's living like those of whom he writes, no thought or longing giving to lurid days and nights. Then comes some sickly scandal, some drama rank and coarse, in which that saintly vandal is screaming for divorce. And thus some actress winning is shrined in all our hearts; she seems remote from sinning and all the sordid arts. The moving films unfold her in strictly moral shows; whenever we behold her, our admiration grows. We christen her "Our Lizzie," and praise her till we're hoarse—then she knocks us dizzy by asking a divorce. A lot of us old wedges still look on wedding rings and solemn marriage pledges as being sacred things. And now we find them tiring, these gifted girls and men; they had us once admiring, but never will again.

WILL COUNT C. OF C. BALLOTS THURSDAY

Ballots on the regular election for six directors to the Chamber of Commerce have been pouring in the offices of the organization.

The ballots are put away until Thursday evening when they will be unsealed by the election committee, which will meet that night and will be counted.

Over 100 ballots were received the first day after ballots had been out long enough to be marked. It is urged that everyone exercise their right to vote so that the six new directors elected will be the expression of the organization.

SPORTS

FOOTBALL SEASON TAKES CENTER STAGE; NEW RULES ANNOUNCED FOR THE SPORT

Football, premier of fall sports, is returning this season with a zest and a bang that predicts for it one of its biggest seasons and threatens to dislodge the presidential campaign from public interest.

The sport weathered the war well, as everyone knows who followed the game closely last season. In fact 1919 ushered in one of the most successful grid seasons that has yet been recorded in Mr. Spalding's football Koran.

With only ten weeks in which to start and conclude its act, football is pushed to a lively gait to cover the territory in so short a time. Perhaps that is why so much good stuff is dished out on the football menu on gridirons all over the United States and parts of Indiana. There is no time for a slump, such as bowls over baseball champions and converts them into cellar cooties, and as a result the lads who don the moleskins know they are in for a few weeks of determined effort and what-not and then it is all over, so they give their best to it.

As an annual and consistent dope-upter, the pigskin amusement, taking it by and large, is a regular winner of the sportive and much-overworked blue ribbon. Where is the scribe who could have sweltered in a newspaper office in August 1919, and given forth to the sport world a prediction that a little bright spot in the darkness, such as Center college, which occupies a plot within the environs of Danville, Ky., would come out and plaster itself all over the headlines. Yet such was the case.

Centre, with a team of mountaineers, swatted the proverbial and annual champ predictions for a purple loop, and took it upon itself to make the rest of the pigskin world sit up and rub its eyes. And yet the Kentuckians did not do anything that should have jostled an experienced sport world, for while they walloped West Virginia, where is the big eleven that does not have an off day during the season? But the way that Center was accepted during the late lamented football season, goes to prove that the world is with the under dog and is always casting a monocled eye out for the dark complexioned equine.

And now then, with grapes ripening and summer yawning sleepily, here comes Walter Camp, he being no other than the dean of the grand old grid game, with his annual concoction of directions and antidotes, which are at once disseminated to an eager and ignorant public through the medium of the football guide. Few and at long intervals are the changes in the instructions meted out by Mr. Camp and his rule making cohorts this season.

For instance there is a bit about substitution, which says that from now on and henceforth after a player has reported to the proper official and the change has been made, the substitution shall be considered completed, which is no enlightenment whatever, as no one ever knew it was any different from that.

Then this year's football Hoyle says that both the referee and the linesman shall be charged with the duty of watching a man in motion before the ball is put in play. The development of shift plays has made this necessary, according to the book. It is further asserted by the lawmaker that when a player makes a shift and comes to his position he shall have both feet firmly implanted on the ground.

The rule makers earned their money when they handed "clipping" the blue envelope, ruling this practice as "unnecessary roughness" and therefore taboo. The act shall be applied whether the ball is dead or not if done to a man who is obviously out of play. Roughing the forward passer is also placed under unnecessary roughness and carries a penalty with it.

And further, say the law-makers, the penalty for a man starting before the ball is put in play is measured from the point of the scrimmage, and the penalty for a man thrown when out of bounds is measured from the point where the runner crossed the line.

Then there is a bit of wording about the incomplect forward pass, which holds that time must be taken out from the time the pass become incomplect until play starts again. The official of the game is also imparted with the power to demand that a play be made over again, if a false starting signal is used, designed to draw the opposition off side.

The rule regarding the fair catch signal, which is about as seldom used as a nose guard, has been changed by the alert rulemen to read "prior to attempt to catch the ball," instead of "while advancing toward the ball."

And here, the law-makers make their biggest change when they eliminate the punt-out from the game altogether. The punt-out was a free kick from behind the goal line after a touchdown was scored, the object being to place the ball in a better position in front of the goal posts to insure a safe goal kick, and thus add the extra point. The criticism of this goal-kicking, which developed with the defeat of many good teams by a single point, through that law, has probably led to the abolishment of the punt-out, thus putting both teams on an equal basis as far as position in kicking goal is concerned. The touchdown still counts six and the side making the touchdown, no matter where the ball crossed the line, may bring the oval out into the field of play straight in front of the goal posts. Thus leaving the best to the last, the rule-makers have abolished probably the only cause for dissatisfaction in the rules, and put both teams on an equal chance to score from the kicked goal. In the past the team that scored between the uprights had the edge on the team that counted near a corner of the oblong. Now the extra point will be entirely a question of booting ability.

The rules now are down to five point and they should aid in making the pigskin game prosper in this and future seasons. It has taken years for the rule-makers, eliminating here and adding there, to bring the laws down to the general level of satisfaction that they are now, but with the perfect directions now issued there should be no contention and absolute harmony on the whitewashed oblongs during the coming autumn.

SPORT BRIEFS

Carl Mays faced the Tigers after having been knocked from the slab Sunday and tamed the Detroiters 4 to 2. Babe got his 49th.

The Reds sink lower and lower. The Phillies whipped them 6 to 2.

The Pirates were held to three hits by Scott, and the Braves added a victory, 3 to 0.

The Red Sox were forced fourteen innings to win from the Browns 5 to 4.

Having acquired the double victory about the Dodgers worked it on the Cubs, 7 to 3 and 7 to 2.

The Indians were forced to the limit to defeat the Athletics 3 to 2.

A home run by Felsch with the bases full helped the White Sox beat the Senators 15 to 6.

XENIA TO HAVE ANOTHER TEAM

That Xenia is to have another independent football team besides the Maroons, is assured with the announcement that members of a younger set of athletes will meet to organize soon.

The new team is composed of the class of players who have been playing with the Meteor baseball team this summer but the football squad will go under a different name. Manager Wones of the Meteors is interested in the project to organize the new team. It is understood and the eleven will be given birth soon with a likely list of moleskin artists in its ranks.

ANSWERED LETTERS

Clare.—You probably have not learned how to manage your allowance. From the amount you spent you should be well dressed all the time but that does not mean a large wardrobe. A good tailored suit will keep you looking stylish for most occasions, this can be taken for business later when another is purchased, though most women run the one suit, keeping it freshened all the time by regular sponging and pressing. There should be enough blouses to go with the suit dressy ones for occasions and plainer ones that will stand laundering for business. A one piece frock or a set of one of either soft silk will make a good dress for best and dress is stylish and serviceable. Young women often need experience before they can purchase wisely. A good rule is to have only enough clothes for your requirements you can renew them as needed and keep in better style this way. The allowance had better be in bank, than locked up in useless finery. You are about twelve pounds over weight.

Fatty R. Buckle.—You should weigh between 130 and 135 pounds. You should avoid all the starchy food and sweets, all fat meats, cream and any food containing much fat, such as pastry or fried things. If you desire fuller information on the reduction diet send an addressed stamped envelope, stating your needs.

Mrs. L. B.—Your nose could be improved as you suggest. It is not a difficult operation but you should be sure of the reliability of your surgeon.

Anxious.—Skirts will be longer in the coming season. Any reliable firm that makes braces can take care of your requirements.

DR. JOHN W. MCKEMY OF DAYTON KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Dr. John W. McKemy, 44, prominent Dayton physician, at one time coroner, and during the war an army surgeon with the rank of Captain, was killed instantly Monday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock and five other people were bruised and slightly injured, when the automobile in which they were riding struck a bridge on the Indian Riffle road between Beavertown and Mt. Zion, and plunged over a seven foot embankment on its side.

Dr. McKemy suffered a broken neck and his head was crushed beyond recognition. He lived but a few minutes. Dr. W. A. Ryan, who was in the machine, was knocked unconscious but recovered as soon as he was extricated from the wrecked machine. Other occupants of the machine who were bruised and shocked, were Mrs. McKemy, Mrs. Ryan, Thomas Cody of Covington, Ky., and W. R. Hughes of Cincinnati, owner and driver of the new Packard touring car in which the party was riding. Cody was pinned beneath the machine, but was released by farmers who rushed to the help of the motorists. Efforts to extricate Dr. McKemy before he died were unavailing as he was pinned beneath the front seat.

Mr. Hughes and Mr. Cody were on their way to Ontario, Canada, to spend their vacation and on their arrival in Dayton stopped to visit with Mrs. McKemy and Ryan. The latter and their wives decided to accompany the motorists on to Columbus and they left Dayton about five o'clock, driving to Beavertown and turning east to strike the Indian Riffle road and come on into this city.

They had crossed the county line into Greene County when the accident occurred near a small bridge, the rear wheels of the auto sinking into soft dirt at the side of the road. Hughes managed to pull out of the soft earth, but before he could right the car it plunged over the embankment on the opposite side of the road and fell on its side. Occupants of the car said they were not driving fast but eye witnesses said the machine was going at a good rate of speed.

J. R. Brownell, farmer living near the scene of the accident who was driving into his lane at the time was an eye witness and the first to reach the place. Dan Seifer, was a quarter of a mile away but he heard the crash and saw the cloud of dust that rose from the wreckage.

Coroner R. L. Haines was called immediately and viewed the body of Dr. McKemy. All members of the party were returned to Dayton shortly afterward in the automobile of a passing motorist.

Dr. McKemy was born in Dayton, February 1, 1876, and was a son of the late Judge W. D. McKemy. He was a cousin of Mrs. D. E. Anderson of this city and of Mrs. Albert Woodrow who is also well-known here. He was appointed police surgeon of the Dayton department in 1906 and later in 1910, and he also served two years as Coroner of Montgomery county. During the war Dr. McKemy served in France as Captain in the medical corps and on his return married Miss Minnie Neiderman of Dayton, who survives him with his mother, a brother Glen McKemy and one sister, Mrs. Walter Cline all of Dayton. Dr. McKemy had offices in the Reibold building with Dr. Ryan. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

CHICKEN THIEVES

The chickens were all matured and fat pullets, and worth easily $2 apiece, the loss amounting to $100. Mrs. Ankeney, aroused during the night, saw a machine on the road near the house but did not suspect that it belonged to thieves until an investigation the next morning showed the chickens missing. No trace of them could be found.

"JUST A GIRL"

BY JANE PHELPS

Zena's Responsibility Increases.
CHAPTER 116
My interest in my work increased daily—I might almost say hourly. Gradually I was given less letter writing, less routine work, and more to do in the bond department. Naturally this was a more attractive position in every way, although it took me from Mr. Claxton's office a part of the time.

Once he made a laughing remark, "I consider myself very unselfish!" I had no slightest idea to what he referred, so asked:

"In what particular way, Mr. Claxton?"

"In allowing you to spend so much time in the bond department, when that means depriving myself of your services."

"But Miss Wilcox—she is more expert in a way than I am." She had been taking dictation for him.

I was not thinking of work particularly. A pleasant personality means a good deal to me. It was said in so inconsequential a manner that I did not feel unduly flattered at the time. But after I reached home, I recalled what he had said, and it made me happy that I had been fortunate to please him to the extent that he desired me near him.

I never dreamed that he was thinking of me save as an employee, or that his kindness had any deeper meaning. Mrs. Fagin was both excited and sad over our plans to leave her. She was delighted for Mary and Tom to have a home, and had been most kind in helping Mary with advice. But she wept bitterly because we were both to leave her.

"You'll be comin' to see us, Mrs. Fagin, and we won't forget to come to see you real often," Mary said in her hearty way.

"It was bad enough to lose you, Mary, but to have Miss Zena go too!" Her tears flowed afresh. I tried to comfort:

"Please don't feel so badly, Mrs. Fagin. You are going to help me with the wedding supper, you know, and we shall see you often. Don't think you are rid of us when Mary marries—we couldn't get along without you, either of us."

Mary was to be married on Saturday. Tom would close the shop for the afternoon. I would go with them the first of the week.

"I am going to get some green vines to trim the table," I confided, as Mrs. Fagin wiped her eyes on the corner of her apron. She was mercurial, and her good natured face was wreathed in smiles as I planned. But the tears were very close, and often misted her kind old eyes.

"I'll make the wedding cake—the old-fashioned kind with so much fruit it will keep for years," she told us.

"Let's plan the menu now," I said as I reached for pencil and paper.

"Let's have chicken, Tom loves it!" Mary said, thinking first of him, as she invariably did.

"Yes, chicken, either broiled or fried, some nice broth, some vegetables with chicken, and a fruit salad, ice cream, and coffee. Will that be enough?"

"Enough! I should say so!" Mary declared enthusiastically. But Zena, you must let Tom and me help pay for the things. That dinner will cost a lot."

"That's my business," I pretended to be cross. I am going to give this dinner, or supper, all by my lone some, Mrs. Fagin will help me prepare it and will make the cake. You haven't a thing to say about it!"

"Mum I'll be."

"You see I am rich now, Mary. And one of the fine things about having money is that you can make people happy with it. I sent Mother $10 this morning, and I felt so proud."

"I'd blow up and bust if I was in your place. Why I don't believe there's another office girl in Chicago that has got on as fast as you have."

"That's because I have such a nice man to work for."

"Maybe! And maybe he favors you a little—a mischievous laugh made me spring up and lightly box her ears. She often tried to tease me about Mr. Claxton. It was so silly I didn't even listen at times.

SIMPLE HOME REMEDY ADVISED FOR HAY FEVER

Anyone Can Make a Pint for Trifling Sum and Used in Time May Prevent Annual Attack.

"No matter how severe your yearly attack be."

"No matter how distressing or humiliating."

"Its intensity can be reduced to a harmless mildness," says a Kentucky druggist, who believes from what he has seen that this simple home made remedy is a most important discovery.

He has seen the most severe and apparently unquarable cases of Hay and Cough fever reduced to what might be called a Mild Cold in twenty-four hours.

In many cases where the patient started treatment week or ten days before the expected attack, the unwelcome yearly visitor failed to appear with anything like its usual intensity.

People who want to try this new treatment can make a pint in a few minutes.

Four three-quarters of an ounce of Mentholized Arcline into a pint bottle. Then fill the bottle with water that has been boiled. Gargle daily with the mixture and sniff or spray the nostrils twice daily.

That's all there is to the treatment which so many sufferers have found to be a true friend.

Mentholized Arcline in three-quarter-ounce vials is dispensed by all the better pharmacies.

Mentholized Arcline is new in the market. It is possible that your druggist has not supplied himself, but he can get it for you from his jobber, who has a large supply.

Oh, you Pete:

Remember Ratty Waters who tied the dishpan under Prof. Bunns car at Princeton? He's more seriously inclined now—sells high grade bonds! Ran smack into Ratty as he was hustling for his a.m. fodder with a Camel cigarette perched between his lips and looking as happy as a turtle on a log! It's a pretty art—this opening up the swarming with a Camel!

Well sir, Pete, what Ratty rattled into my rafters would supply Camel selling stuff for a year! There's nothing to this cigarette game but Camels," said Ratty. "Their wellbourness is a revelation and I never did run into such mildness in my life! And, when you figure that Camels have all the 'body' any smoker wants—well, I just marvel that such a cigarette could be made! Ever get such refreshing flavor?"

Pete, it was grat to hear Ratty sing praises of Camels quality. And what a mouthfull he said about Camels blend of choice Turkish and Domestic tobaccos!

For instance, Ratty spread this—"Shorty, I can't stand the usual unpleasant cigarette aftertaste and unpleasant cigarette odor! Camels are free from both! (100% O.K., Pete!) And, they never tire my taste! When you pass by Camels you have slipped by your smoke signals!

Tried to get Ratty to put some of that sales talk on paper, but he came back:—"You tell 'em, old Kettle—you've got the Spout!"

Pete, Camels won Ratty's favor like they've won thousands of others! They'll win any man who gives 'em a chance!

PS.—Just wrote R.T. Reynolds Tobacco Co. I ought to help to slip a picture of the Camel package right along like this! When ideas brewing!
